129TH SESSION OF COLLEGE OPENS WITH PRESIDENT MOODY'S ADDRESS

"Intellectual Curiosity" Subject of Opening Talk.

GIVES REASONS FOR VARIETY OF STUDIES

Tells of Changes in the Lines of Thinking Since 1800.

"Intellectual Curiosity" was the subject of President Moody's address delivered in Mead Memorial Chapel at the formal opening of the 129th session of Middlebury college last Thursday morning. President Moody began by outlining the progress which had been made in science in the last century. He said in part:

Now WHY has such progress been made in the last 100 years? It is really because men have been turning their eyes forward instead of back. You have often heard that in 1812 a man resigned from his post in the United States Patent Office because he felt that invention was at an end and there would be a decreasing need of the services of the Patent Office.

Today we may say what a fool that man was. But the thing to bear in mind was that the eighteenth, and in a measure the nineteenth century mind was one which looked back.

It is because so much time was wasted in this, that the reaction came, and the swing to Science began. And with the swing to Science the sudden multiplication of our knowledge, till today the sophomore in Science knows what a generation ago the most learned scientist did not even dream of. But,—and this is the important thing for you to remember—, his knowledge is worthless unless he also knows that a generation hence his knowledge will be outgrown and obsolete. In other words, today as never before, knowledge consists of consciousness of ignorance.

The secret of success in college as in life, is the existence of genuine intellectual curiosity, the desire to know. The possession of this does not mean high marks necessarily. But it does mean true success. The absence of this does not mean failure, by any means in the acedemic success. For you may memorize the facts you need for an examination and forget them when the examination is over. But the lack of it means failure in the truest sense in college and in life. For in college work is dull to the man or woman who lacks this curiosity, and in after years life itself is drab and colorless. For I would guard you against false views of success. It is a false view of success to accept the verdict of others upon your work. The world will applaud what you in your best moments and at the bottom of your hear condemn as cheap, and on the other hand often turn an indifferent shoulder to the best work you have ever done.

No method has as yet been devised by which we are able to detect the existence of this quality in candidates for admission to college. If we could, it would be a simple thing. Those students who come to college because their parents want them to or because it is the way to make a better living, or because they do not know what else to do would be speedily rejected. Only those who really felt the challenge of life, who wanted to know, who felt the thrill of the unknown, would we take in. But no such method exists or is apt to and perhaps it is as well for there are many in whom this intellectual curiosity does not awaken till a later day and we might be guilty of great injustice.

Modern education has laid increasing stress on the awakening of this intellectual curiosity and it has been often demonstrated that the awakening of it in one field led to an interest

FRESHMAN WEEK PROVES A SUCCESS

Talks and Reception Feature Three Day Program.

"Freshmen week" formally commenced Monday, September 17, with the arrival of the members of the class of 1932. Freshmen week was adopted by Middlebury last year and corresponds to what is termed orientation week in many other colleges. It is a week devoted to the freshmen affording them a fine opportunity to become acquainted with their new environment.

Monday the members of the class arrived and received their assignments for the week. In the evening there was an open mass meeting for the class in the Playhouse. The meeting was addressed by President Paul D. Moody, Registrar Jennie H. Bristol and Professor Julius Kingsley and was in the nature of a welcome to the new arrivals.

Tuesday registration began for both men and women. In the morning the freshman women were given a lecture on the use of the library, while the men were given a hygiene lecture at the Playhouse by Dr. F. M. Seerley of Springfield, Mass. A meeting of the Student Government Association of the women's college was held that evening at the Play House, at which time various officers and organization leaders were introduced.

The library lecture was given for the men Wednesday morning. In the afternoon, Dean Eleanor S. Ross gave an informal talk to the women at two o'clock in the Play House. At seven o'clock, Dean Burt A. Hazeltine addressed the men in an informal talk. Following this meeting, President and Mrs. Moody held a reception for the freshmen men at their home. This enabled the men to get further acquainted with one another and also to meet some of the professors.

The opening exercises and address by President Moody were held Thursday morning at half past nine in Mead Memorial Chapel. In the afternoon, the annual Psychological examination was given in the McCullough Gymnasium. In the evening, "Middlebury Night" was observed by the men, which completed the activities of "Freshmen Week."

1930 KALEIDOSCOPE LAUNCHES INTENSIVE SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE

Many New Features To Be Worked Into This Year's Book.

CAMPAIGN STARTED WITH EDITORS TALK

View Section And Art Work To Be Completely Different.

Elbert H. Henry, circulation manager of the 1930 Kaleidoscope launched an intensive drive last week for the securing of subscriptions for the annual. All of the students will be visited by some member of the staff in an effort to give everyone an opportunity to get this year's book, since it will be different than any published so far and so many were unable to get one last year because the business manager did not know beforehand that they wanted one.

Considerable work on the new annual has already been done. The editor states that the art work is well under way and will be different than has ever been attempted by Kaleidoscope boards in the past. Just what the subscribers can expect, he refuses to say, but states with confidence that a pleasant surprise awaits.

The drive for subscriptions was formally opened with a talk in Chapel last Friday by Frank A. Chromec '30, editor of the 1930 annual. He said, "You must subscribe in order that the business manager may know whether to order an annual for you or not, so that you will not be in the position of some fifty students who desired a copy of last year's book, but were unable to get one because every one printed was sold before the order was sent to the printer. This is your annual and your cooperation is required for its success, so the least that you can do for it is to subscribe."

One of the new features of the book will be an entirely different campus view section. It will be colored and printed by a special process. There will be some three color work in the book, something that has never been done in a Kaleidoscope. Special attention will be given to the snapshot and the atheltic sections.

FROSH GRIDSTERS BEGIN PRACTICE

Freshman football started last Friday with about forty promising candidates answering the call. The squad, contrary to the original plan, is in charge of Coach Hessler, and Coach Clogston is assisting Coach Beck with the varsity line. The coach has not as yet been able to get a good line on his freshman material, but promises to turn out a fighting team.

House Chairmen Elections Held During Opening Week

Elections of house chairmen for the fall semester were held last week. The following were chosen from the various dormitories: Francis Foley '29 and Isabel Holt '29, Chateau; Sylvia Westin '29, Elizabeth Cady '29, Margaret Brooks '29, Elizabeth Mc Dermott '29 and Jean Couttier '32, Pearsons; Carolyn Belcher '29 and Marian Cruikshank '30 Battell Cottage; Francelia Rose '30 Homestead; Ellen Kellogg '31 and Wilhelmina Hayes '30 Hillcrest; Elizabeth Dyer '30, Wilcox; Marion Jones '32, Professor Howard's house; Marjorie Potts '30, Weybridge House; Emeline Amidon '29 Hillside; Dorothy Pearson '31, Music House; Dale Carpenter '31, the Ross House; Ruth Potter '30, the Bryant House.

COACH BECK'S WARRIORS PREPARED FOR OPENING BATTLE WITH AMHERST

Team Makes Good Showing In First Scrimmage of Year.

CLOGSTON WILL BE COACH OF LINEMEN

Nine Men Available From Last Year's Squad.

The Blue and White eleven will open their season this Saturday against Amherst at the latter's field. The Panthers have been fast rounding into shape under the careful tutelage of Coach Beck, Middlebury's new mentor. Nearly all the men returned early for the training camp although a few have joined the squad since college opened last week. However the squad is still small and new material would be welcomed. The new coach has brought with him a new system and the style of play this year will be much different from the old Morey system under which Middlebury teams have played for several years.

With nine letter men available from last year, a first team is practically set, but good second team material is lacking. A few changes have been made in the lineup. Captain Webber, center of last year, is now playing end due to the scarcity of line men in that position, and Whitman, captain of last year's freshman team, is filling the gap at center. MacNary who played both guard and center last year is being used at tackle along with Huntington, another veteran. Allen Bedell and Keenan are fighting it out for the guard positions, while Maynard will most likely be captain Webber's running mate at end. The backfield will probably show only one new man. Johnson, at quarter, Willis at half, Guarnaccia at full are practically sure bets, while McLeod will probably start in the other halfback position. Huntington and Willis will do the punting.

Little is known of the Amherst club this year other than they will probably have a heavy line which averages well over one hundred eighty pounds. Plenty of opposition can be expected however, as the Lord Jeffs always have one of the strongest teams among the "Little Three."

In the first real scrimmage of the year last Saturday, the varsity scored three touchdowns over the second stringers. The defense work of the regulars was one of the highlights of the clash.

The starting lineups in the scrimmage were, varsity: captain Webber and Maynard, ends; Huntington and MacNary tackles; Allen and Keenan guards; Whitman, center; Johnson, quarterback; Willis and McLeod halfbacks; Guarnaccia, fullback. Second team: Gruggel and Hoyt, ends; Schmidt and Wright, tackles; Bedell and Webster, guards; Green, center; Foote, quarterback; McLaughlin and Blanchette, halfbacks; and Smith fullback. Hazeltine and Jacobs at end, Perry at tackle, and Duffany at fullback comprised the substitutes.

The squad has been at work since September 5 when the training camp opened. Coach B. H. Beck who has just come to Middlebury as varsity coach has been assisted by Roy D. Clogston, from Springfield College, and Harvey Hessler. Mr. Clogston is working with the linemen, while Mr. Hessler has been training the ends and now is working with the freshmen team. Captain Christopher Webber and Manager Chauncey Niles and Assistant Manager Roland Casey, complete the staff.

Total Registration 623.

Latest registration figures show a total of 623, with 334 men and 289 women. When registration is complete the CAMPUS will print a tabulated summary showing the number of men and women in each class.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN FACULTY STAFF

Professors Hathaway and Longwell Return From Sabbaticals.

Coincident with the opening of college occur numerous changes in the faculty staff. In the department of Physical Education, Benjamin H. Beck assumes the duties of Athletic Director and Coach. Coach Beck received his A. B. degree from the University of Nebraska in 1916, taking his major work in physical education. He has since been associated with the Iowa City High School, Hamline University, Brown University, Medford, Mass. High School, and numerous other institutions. Roy A. Clogston, B. P. E. Springfield College 1928, also joins the deparement as varsity line coach. Mr. Clogston has been coaching at Springfield College during the past two years.

Cameron Duncan Ebaugh becomes Assoc. Professor of Spanish in the absence of Professor Moreno Lacalle. Mr. Ebaugh holds an A. B. from Johns Hopkins University, and an A. M. from Middlebury. He has had teaching experience at Rutgers, Rice Institute, and Miami University. Miss Rose Martin also joins the department as a Fellow.

For the department of Public Speaking and Drama, Vincent Spencer Goodreds has been chosen as successor to Prof. W. N. Morse, who goes to Tufts. Mr. Goodreds has been connected with the Buffalo School Department and with the University of Buffalo.

Germaine C. LeCossec, who holds degrees from Les Ecoles Normales and La Sorbonne, Paris, returns to Middlebury after an absence of several years as Instructor of French. M. Jean Ehrhard, who comes directly from France as an exchange professor, will join the department as an Asst. professor.

Milo Sargent Gibbs, who now acts as Director of Public Relations for the college, is offering a new course in Journalism this year. Mr. Gibbs who will be remembered as an active leader in the Middlebury's Million Drive of several years ago is a graduate of the University of Chicago with an A. B. degree and has done graduate work at the University of London. For the past few years he has lectured on elements of journalism and publicity at special short courses at Columbia. He is on the Board of governors of the New York Fraternity clubs and is a member of Beta Theta Pi.

The journalism course which is being taught by Mr. Gibbs will take up briefly the background of American journalism with more time and emphasis placed on the practical side of of news writing. Special attention will be paid to the importance of the use of good English. Classes will be conducted as a city editor's room.

Other appointments on the staff include Alfred M. Dame, Associate Professor of Greek, who comes from Williams and Mary, Marjory Johnson, Middlebury 1925, is Instructor of Home Economics, Robert W. McAllister as a Fellow in Chemistry, and Myra A. Bagley, Middlebury 1910, who assumes her new duties as Director of Admissions for women.

Professors returning from sabbatical leaves are Professor Lewis J. Hathaway and Professor Samuel E. Longwell, both of whom spent the past year in travel and study abroad.

INTELLECTUAL CURIOSITY

Approximately a million students are now enrolled in the colleges and universities of the country. The greater part of this million is being told that it will get out of college just what it puts in. Those who hear it for the first time, though few in number, will be most impressed by its truth. The rest of us, having heard it over and over will be inclined to place it in the class of many other sayings which owe their popularity to the ease with which they slide off the tongue rather than to any basis in fact.

But the very fact that college presidents, editors, professors, senior advisors and so on—the very ones who are tired of hearing this trite quotation—are the ones who repeat it most often shows that at least for once there is enough truth in a saying to insure its repetition although it is timeworn and hackneyed to the nth degree.

President Moody emphasized in his opening address last Thursday the fact that by putting that one element, intellectual curiosity, into our studies, we can get a great deal more out of our college work. Not in studies alone, but also in extra- curricula activities, the more we ask ourselves, "Why?", the more we connect up activities with studies, the more we do that we don't really have to do, the more we are going to get from our stay at college.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

Coach Beck made a very sensible and straightforward plea to the undergraduates who sat in a sort of stupor at the rally last Thursday night. He told us that the football team was ours. We have heard that before. But he furthermore showed us our responsibility in producing for Middlebury a winning team. Not only must we support the team with our cheers and presence at home games—easy things to do when everyone else is doing the same—but we must take on something of the cares and responsibility of manager and coach.

By our approval or disapproval we can control the conduct of those about us. It is easier to break the unpopular law than it is the timeworn custom and so it is up to us to make it a custom at Middlebury that training rules be kept. Coach Beck is doing his part of the work and we should be willing to take upon ourselves a little of the responsibility which we are wont to pass on to the next fellow who in turn passes it on until it eventually reaches the coach.

Let's do our share of the work.

And let's go to Amherst to see how well we have done the job.

If the meeting last Thursday evening was a pep rally we should hate to go to a plain ordinary rally. The band was the one redeeming feature in a very funereal affair.

With the chapel seating facilities more crowded than ever we are somewhat worried as to how the increased number of dogs on the campus can be provided for.

Diogenes should be here. Perhaps with a strong searching light he could find someone who didn't have a fine vacation.

in other fields. Like Kipling's story of the ship that found herself, the student finds himself and because of his interest in one subject comes to life in another for he sees the relation of the two. You will often find in life men who have gone back and acquired some knowledge in a field to which they were indifferent because it adjoined the field in which they worked.

Let me enumerate briefly what a genuine intellectual curiosity will do for you. It will turn drudgery into pleasure. If you really want to know you will count no hours, long devoted to your subject, no effort great which leads to the mastery of it.

It will protect you from bigotry. Bigotry is based on ignorance. Predjudice is pre-judging, judging before all the facts are known. Intellectual curiosity is that which prevents us from accepting the dictums of prophets, priests or patriarchs unless they can be proved or unless they can be made to commend themselves to our reason. It is that which had lead Columbus to question the universally accept theory that the world was flat. It is that which lead Pasteur to question to conclusions that older heads had reached. He was laughed at and derided. But he gave the world a great gift. It is the refusal to accept as final knowledge any statement until every thing possible has been learned about it. Pasteur never would accept a fact as final until he had subjected it to every test he could devise.

A vital intellectual curiosity is the only precaution and safeguard probably in existence against getting into a rut.

The inquiring mind is also the humble mind. There are many people in this world whom you can tell, not because they know so much but just because they know so little.

Intellectual curiosity is a safeguard against falsehood. There grows in the minds of those who really want to know, a love for the truth which makes them increasingly impatient of shams and lies in others, and so, scornful of it in themselves.

So, in like measure, intellectual curiosity is the safeguard against laziness.

Someone will say that these qualities which I have been talking about are more moral than intellectual, hatred of lying, mastery of laziness, disgust with sham and superficiality. They are moral qualities, and that is why education has never been successfully developed from the development of character. That is why educational institutions have of necessity laid emphasis upon character.

I want to commend to you four reasons for mastering a subject whether you like it or not. The first is that you may need the knowledge for further study. Nearly all things are related in this world. And the reason why advanced mathematics are so nearly impossible to some people is because they never laid a proper foundation or mastered arithmetic or algebra.

A second reason is for the sake of the thing you study. I do not pretend to say that you will remember all you learn so that everything you study will be found useful to you in years to come. But the curriculum of a college ought to be, and this one I believe is, so arranged that there is much that you can learn that will be useful to you, not alone in making a living, but in living itself, as well. For there is a difference.

Yet a third reason for mastering the subject you study is the mental discipline. And here the gain is greater than even the knowledge you secure. For you may forget the knowledge, or it may never be of use, but the habit of concentration, the mental discipline will remain with you as long as you live.

There is a fourth reason. It is the moral one. It is our duty to do the things we have to do as well as we can. And the man who does, gets a satisfaction which others miss. There is a satisfaction about doing our best which nothing else equals. The real man would rather do his best though he be defeated than win an easy victory. Better to make a showing against Tilden than score an easy win over our kid brother. Better to try nobly, even if we fail than to succeed where there is no honor in success.

WAMBA SAYS

Now that we are back in school we can start thinking of what we will do when we go home again.

That the Freshmen class is the best he has seen in years (Apologies to Prexy) in spite of the fact that they seemed to be all wet last Thursday night.

Rushing does not start until November 19.

Hi-Hattting is out of place in Middlebury, especially on the women's side of the Hill.

A social call in football player's rooms is ill timed if made after 10 P. M.

Amherst will be surprised at what our boys can do on a gridiron.

Coach Beck's All-American team needs more candidates. How can the Varsity scrimmage without them?

Your cooperation is not needed only in the publication of the Kaleidoscope, but also in the making of our gridsters a winning aggregation. It costs nothing to get all enthused about football, so get together and your bit, the team will do theirs.

Now that the Freshmen men can have dates the first month how will the upperclassmen get acquainted with the newcomers?

If you think this paper needs improvements, don't tell your roommate about it, tell the editors, they will appreciate it much more.

There is something worse than a talkative room-mate. Were you ever bothered by a cracking radiator?

A good way to find out who is at school this year is to go to the dance at the gym this Saturday night, and there is no better way to get acquainted with the Freshmen.

WOMEN'S FRESHMEN RULES, 1928

The Sophomore women presented the rules and traditions of the college to the incoming class at the Playhouse Thursday evening. Each sophomore brought a freshman and the roll was called at the opening of the meeting.

Rules are as follows:

1. Never permit yourself to mount the steps of the old Chapel.
2. Do not loiter on the steps of Mead Memorial Chapel or in its doorways.
3. The iron fence around the portico may support Seniors only.
4. Observe strict silence during all organ preludes.
5. Never precede an upperclassman or member of the faculty.
6. Seniors alone may enter Pearsons by its South door.
7. Under no circumstances must you ever set foot on the campus of Middlebury College.
8. Give due respect at all times to your Dean and instructors.
9. Always give precedence to those older than yourself. Rise at their entrance and departure.
10. Take part in conversation, but never monopolize it.
11. Remember that you are only a Freshman and must keep your place as such.

MIDDLEBURY NIGHT OBSERVED IN GYM.

President Moody; Beck and Webber Address Annual Men's Gathering.

"Middlebury Night," the first get together of the men's college, was held Thursday evening at half past seven in McCullough Gymnasium. For the past few years, it has been a part of the "Freshman Week" program to have such a gathering to kindle enthusiasm and support for the teams of the coming year.

The college band opened the rally by playing a march and another pupular number. Although the band had but one rehearsal, it played well and much credit is due to Mr. Joseph F. Lechnyr for his fine work in organizing the group.

Following a number of songs and cheers, President Paul D. Moody gave a short talk outlining the fame of the college and its present high ranking in the educational field. He also told of many of the college traditions and their origin.

The next speaker was Coach Harlowe Beck who has come to Middleburg from Medford High School to serve as varsity coach. He spoke briefly on the spirit of the team and of the support it should receive from the student body, saying that after all the team is representative of the student body as a whole and not of any one individual.

The other speakers of the rally were Christopher Webber, captain of football, Albert Willis, captain of baseball, Forrest Spooner, captain of basketball, Gilbert Smith, captain of track, Professor Perley N. Swett and Dr. D. S. Atwood, Middlebury '13. Professor Swett gave a summary of games played by different Middlebury teams in the past twenty years. Of the games played in all sports, Middlebury has won 226 and lost 235 which, he pointed out, is a very good record considering the size of the college and the number of larger institutions with which it has competed.

Interfraternity Golfers In Tournament This Week

The annual inter-fraternity golf tournament will begin this week at the Middlebury Country Club. By noon Tuesday, the following fraternities had entered their names as contestants: Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Delta Rho, Chi Psi, Beta Kappa, Sigma Phi Epsilon and the neutrals. One or two other fraternities were also expected to hand in their names before the entry list closed at five o'clock Tuesday evening.

Each fraternity is to be represented by three golfers. The teams are eliminated by individual match play. man to man. The team that has two of its representatives defeated by their opponents is automaticlly eliminated, and the victors progress to the succeeding round.

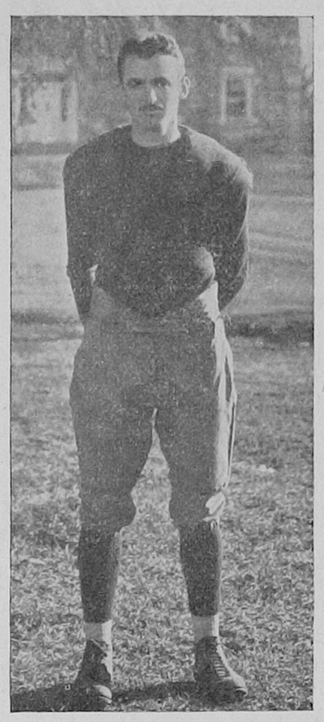
The competition is for a cup presented by the Sages. Last year's cup was won by Delta Upsilon, but their chances of repeating have been somewhat dimmed by the loss of two of their last year's team through graduation. However, all of the teams believe themselves to have an even chance of victory and unless old man Weather surprises us with a snowstorm it's an even bet there will be a battle royal from the moment the boys start to cross iblicks.

D. C. HENDERSON NEW CAPTAIN AND MANAGER OF TENNIS

Donald C. Henderson '29 of Douglloston, N. Y., was elected captain and manager of the 1929 tennis team at a meeting of the lettermen held in June after completing the season .

Henderson was a member of the varsity squad for three years and a regular the last two. He plays Interfraternity basketball and baseball, is a member of the Dramatic club and the Chi Psi fraternity.

Plans for the fall college tennis tournament are under way, and definite announcement of them will be made in the next issue of the CAMPUS



CHRISTOPHER A. WEBBER '29
1928 Grid Captain

WILLIS ELECTED BASEBALL CAPTAIN

Albert E. Willis '29 of St Albans was elected captain of the baseball team at a meeting of the varsity held last June immediately following completion of the season. T. R. Jackson '29 was chosen manager and R. P. Miller '30 assistant manager.

Willis is regular catcher of the baseball team, has won letters and numerals in football and is a member of the basketball squad. He is Sports Editor of the 1929 Kaleisiscope, president of the varsity "M" club and vice-president of the Men's Uudergraduate Association. He is a member of the Interfraternity Council, the Sages and the Delta Kapa Epsilon fraternity.

FIRST THINGS FIRST THEME AT VESPERS

President Moody Speaks at First Chapel of Year.

"First things first" was the subject of President Moody's address at Vespers Sunday. He took for his text Matthew 6:33, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

President Moody said in part: "It is this sense of proportion which is the secret not only of cooking and architecture, but of every grace and art in life—but more than that it is the secret of life itself.

"The first thing to be borne in mind in striving for a sense of proportion is what things really are first. In the second part of Isaiah there is a picture of a man who fells a tree, uses part of it to warm himself and part to cook his food. Then with consumate skill the writer depicts his making a god out of the residue and kneeling down and praying to it. But the trouble with this sort of arrangement of the values of life is that somehow the religion is found not to be religion at all and of no value in the real crisis of life.

"Let me urge then, first of all a sense of porportion in life, putting first things first, that sense of prospective which enables us to see what things are first and most important, and then the desire at all times to give them the right of way, mindful also that for everything of value there is a corresponding danger; first things may be not only of intense importance but under some circumstances of grave danger. Will you have this in mind in regard to our Lord's words, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

Y. W. C. A. HAS RECEPTION FOR THE CLASS OF 1932

The Young Women's Christian Association held its annual reception to the incoming class Saturday evening at the gymnasium. Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Miss Ruth Temple, Alla Fitzgerald, president of Y. W., and Thelma Gates, president of the Student Government Association were in the receiving line.

The freshmen were requested to wear costumes. The prize for the most original one was given to Anna Omwake, Elizabeth Singiser, Catherine Carrick and Elizabeth Lee who formed an Egyptian caravan. Eleanor Benjamin as a Spanish senorita was selected as the most attractive.

Mary Tudhope '29 was in charge of the entertainment. Refreshments were served, following which there was dancing.

MIDDLEBURY CAMPUS CORRESPONDENT INTERVIEWS PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

By WARD S. YUNKER

The President has come and gone and once more the business of this little state is moving at a normal speed. Business was suspended while "Cal" was in Vermont in order that a warm welcome could be extended to the famous son of the Green Mountains. Each and every town that President Coolidge and his itinerary went through did all it could to make the trip pleasant.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Attorney General Sargent, another famous Vermonter, and secret service men, traveled up the Central Vermont Railway, stopping at all points of interest.

Switching over to the Rutland Railroad, the President's party stopped at Burlington where the people turned out en masse to greet him. Mrs. Coolidge visited the grave of her father, Capt. Edward L. Goodhue, at the Greenmound cemetery and left a bouquet of flowers.

Continuing south, stops were made at all towns en route. People turned out in large numbers and cheered noisily as the President and Mrs. Coolidge came to the rear platform to acknowledge the greeting.

The college and town turned out en masse at Middlebury, where Mrs. Coolidge received a bouquet of flowers. The first lady of the land received flowers from nearly every town and the inside of the private car was a veritable flower garden. The President and his wife expressed delight at the turnout of the college, Mrs. Coolidge being very much amused by the Frosh pea greens. Both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were much interested in the college and the writer had to answer a regular questionnaire.

The presidential party stopped at Ludlow and motored from there to Plymouth, the boyhood home of Mr. Coolidge. Old friends gave "Cal" a hearty welcome and he seemed pleased to rest in comfort in the homely furnishings of his old home. Col. John Coolidge's grave was visited, the President appearing greatly moved by seeing again the final resting place of his father and his son, Calvin, Jr.

Friday, the President visited Cavendish and was very much interested in the damage caused by the deluge of last November. Mr. Coolidge was very much surprised at the extent of the gorge that was washed out right through the center of the town.

From Rutland, the train proceeded south along the western route. People turned out in large numbers at all the stations. At Bennington, the President departed from his silence and made an eloquent speech. This was the first time that Mr. Coolidge has ever spoken from the rear platform of a train. He lauded the state of Vermont and the welcome he had received. Tears were in the President's eyes as he finished and it was said that Mr. Coolidge has seldom spoken so eloquently.

Mrs. Coolidge left the train at Northampton, where she stopped off to visit her mother who has been ill. The rest of the party continued on to Washington where the President resumed his duties, much refreshed by his short visit to his native state.

New York, Sept. 25—(IP)—A three year course in practical aviation will be offered by the evening engineering division and the extension service at New York University this year.

the Blindfold cigarette test

ROGERS HORNSBY . . . capable manager of the Boston Braves . . . captain of the 1927 New York Giants . . . manager of the 1926 St. Louis Cardinals, who won the World's Series.

MR. HORNSBY was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked . . . "Which one do you like best?"

"They say 'there's not a cough in a carload' of OLD GOLDS.

"But I can tell you there's a home-run hit in every cool mouthful.

"For no other cigarette, of the four leading brands in the blindfold test, could compare with OLD GOLDS for pure pleasure to taste, tongue and throat."

Rogers Hornsby

What gives OLD GOLD this winning charm?

Here is the answer, in three words...heart-leaf tobacco. No coarse, heavy top-leaves of the tobacco plant...for they irritate the throat. No withered ground-leaves...for they are lacking in aroma. Only the cool and fragrant heart-leaves . . . golden ripe . . . can give OLD GOLDS their honey-like smoothness. That's why you can tell them in the dark.
